Why is scheduling important ?

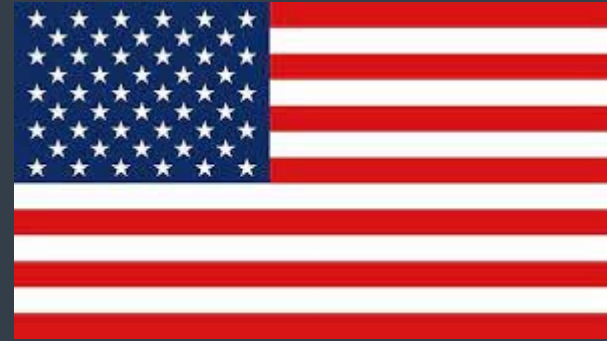

Flexibility

Certainty

Fairness

Predictive Scheduling

- Advance notice of work schedule, generally at least 14 days.
- A written estimate of each employee's anticipated work schedule (at the time of hire)
- Predictability pay in the absence of sufficient advance notice of work schedule.
- Exceptions to eligibility for predictability pay.
- A right to rest requirement to prevent "clopening" (i.e. no employee should be required to close up at night and open up the next day), as well as amplified pay for close-in-time work shifts.
- Offers of additional hours to current part-time employees before hiring a new employee.
